1. There are caches of arms in Romania consisting of machine guns and small arms, of German origin, left by the "Legionnaires" and never turned over to the Russians at the end of the war. They are said to be in perfect condition. These caches are reportedly well looked after by "the people living today in the hills, most of them political enemies of the present regime".
2. Source also reports that former Iron Guardists have begun to be quite active in the "Romanian underground".
